

"Rouging the knee" is fashion's latest mandate. As the skirts continue upward, and the stockings are on a downward roll, the knee is now about the center of the intervening gap. Consequently the knee is now in the public eye about as much as the face—perhaps more so—and therefore requires a similar coating of paint and powder, which is said to be very attractive, of course depending somewhat on the knee itself.

Through the efforts of Col. J. L. Wolfner, of St. Louis, a promotion scheme is being attempted to establish in that city a Democratic morning daily newspaper. Every worthy Democrat throughout the State will hope that such a plan may be carried to a successful conclusion, as a real live Democratic daily is the greatest need of the party in Missouri at this time. With such a general feeling in every part of the State, the scheme of organizing a stock company should be comparatively easy of accomplishment, provided only that the promotion is in safe and competent hands, as practically all Democrats would doubtless be willing, even glad, to subscribe for at least a small amount of stock. The Times has received a letter from Col. Wolfner, in which his plans and ideas are briefly set forth, which indicates that he has made quite a study of this matter and has a rather distinct idea of the enormity of the proposition, for which, he estimates, $3,000,000 will be required. The Times knows that it expresses the earnest wishes of many of its readers for Col. Wolfner's complete success in this excellent work. His idea is to buy a paper already established and convert it into a stalwart and aggressive party paper.
